Control your fuel costs

Fuel is likely your second biggest fleet expense, making up around 20% of running costs. Take control of your expenditure and save big on fuel.

Fuel costs more than just the price at the pump. There's the hassle of sorting out drivers' expense claims, and the unpredictable impact on your cash flow. Personal versus business use? There's an HMRC implication for how you reimburse your employees. Not to mention, making sure your drivers submit honest claims for actual mileage.

Get discounted commercial rates

A typical saving of 10p per litre on diesel and unleaded across 20 vehicles could save thousands*. With greater discounts open to larger fleets.

Switch to Jurni Fuel Cards to make huge savings – not just at the pump, but across your entire set-up. With tighter cost control, and a single automated VAT invoice, you'll streamline operations and make every litre work harder for your business.

Ready to leave pay-and-reclaim admin and receipts behind? Our cards include real-time reporting that's fast and easy to use.

*Based on fuel consumption of 11.5 miles per litre (~52 mpg) for 12k miles annually. With 10p per litre discount applied to average 1,043 annual litres x20 cars. Discounted commercial rates depend on the total annual litres purchased. Subject to status and credit acceptance.

Getting started

We'll uncover extra savings for you with a fast, painless analysis of your fuel costs – showing you exactly how much money you could save.

Here's how it works: we'll ask for a handful of fuel transaction reports (easily downloadable from your current supplier) to ensure the insights are accurate and reflect your real usage. One of our expert analysts will combine this data with relevant geographical information, including anonymised employee postcodes and your office locations.

Using advanced software, we'll analyse the frequency and types of journeys your team takes, then match these with fuel card and charging networks to identify the best coverage and discounts for you.

The result? A like-for-like comparison of the savings you could gain – all at no cost and with zero obligation.
